GENERAL KNOWLEDGE

Question 1

The legend of the word X goes that: In Dublin, a theatre-owner made a bet that he could introduce a new word into the English language within a day or two (the amount of time differs in different retellings of the story), and that people of Dublin will make up the meaning of the word themselves. So, he wrote the nonsensical word X on some pieces of paper and asked a gang of street urchins to write it on the walls across Dublin.

The next day, everyone was talking about the word, and it wasn't long before it the meaning of "some sort of test" was associated with it, because that's what people assumed it to be.

Identify X.

Question 2

Some came from the Sun and Moon,
Others from Thor and his hammer are hewn.
By Odin's beard, and Frigg and Tiw,
The last is Saturn from which we grew.

Question 3 *

In 1956, X recruited a group of young PhD graduates to develop new semiconductor devices. While X had received a Nobel Prize in Physics, his group was experienced harsh working conditions. X chose a strategy for circuit design that failed and created an intolerable working atmosphere. The group of PhD graduates demanded that X be replaced. When their demands were rebuffed, they realized they had to leave. X described their leaving as a "betrayal".

The eight who left came to be known as 'traitorous eight'. In August 1957, they formed Fairchild Semiconductor. Later, Fairchild Semiconductor was directly or indirectly involved in the creation of dozens of corporations such as AMD and Intel and was also the incubator of Silicon valley.

Identify X.
